Headnote

This book chapter contains a general overview of the consumer protection under the Injunctions Directive and the implementing national law. It provides an analysis of the collective remedies which are at the consumers' disposal. The chapter contains summaries of relevant court practice. It is intended to serve as student's coursebook in the area of the Bulgarian Consumer Law. Therefore, it contains questions to be used for individual preparation for seminars at the university.

This chapter is part of the book titled Consumer Law which comprises lectures on the eponymous discipline taught at the Faculty of Law of the University for National and World Economy (Sofia, Bulgaria). The book content is consistent with the approved curriculum. The textbook features thematic practice examples to illustrate the theoretical issues. It reports trends in the evolution of the law of consumer protection in Bulgaria and European law, as reflected in the EU directives and regulations.
