These factsheets explain what happens when a person is suspected or accused of a crime which is dealt with by a trial in court.

Under Austrian law you commit an offence only when you violate a specific legal provision in force at the time the act was committed. The right of prosecution is a right of the state. The prosecuting authorities, directing the criminal investigation department, as well as the courts must determine the facts and clear up all circumstances that are of importance when assessing the facts.

In the following factsheets, you will learn about your rights as a defendant if criminal proceedings are brought against you in Austria. You have different rights during the different stages of the proceedings. The most important stages in the proceedings will be explained in summary form so that you can quickly access the information that you need.

Summary of the criminal process

In principle, the criminal process in Austria comprises three procedural stages:

- preliminary proceedings
- trial
- appeal

Details on all of these stages in the criminal process and about your rights can be found in the factsheets. This information is not a substitute for legal advice and is intended to be for guidance only.

For information on road traffic offences, which are usually dealt with by a fixed penalty like a fine, go to Factsheet 5.
